Scottsdale's Smart City Initiative

Brent Stockwell,
Assistant City Manager

A Smart City combines traditional infrastructure such as roads and buildings with technology to enrich people's lives

It's more than technology... it's about people!

We want to engage with people about how the use of smart city solutions could solve community challenges, improve the quality of life and enhance interactions with the city.

"The fundamental question… is not whether to be for or against innovation, nor for or against technology — it is how to facilitate that innovation and progress that will most benefit city residents."
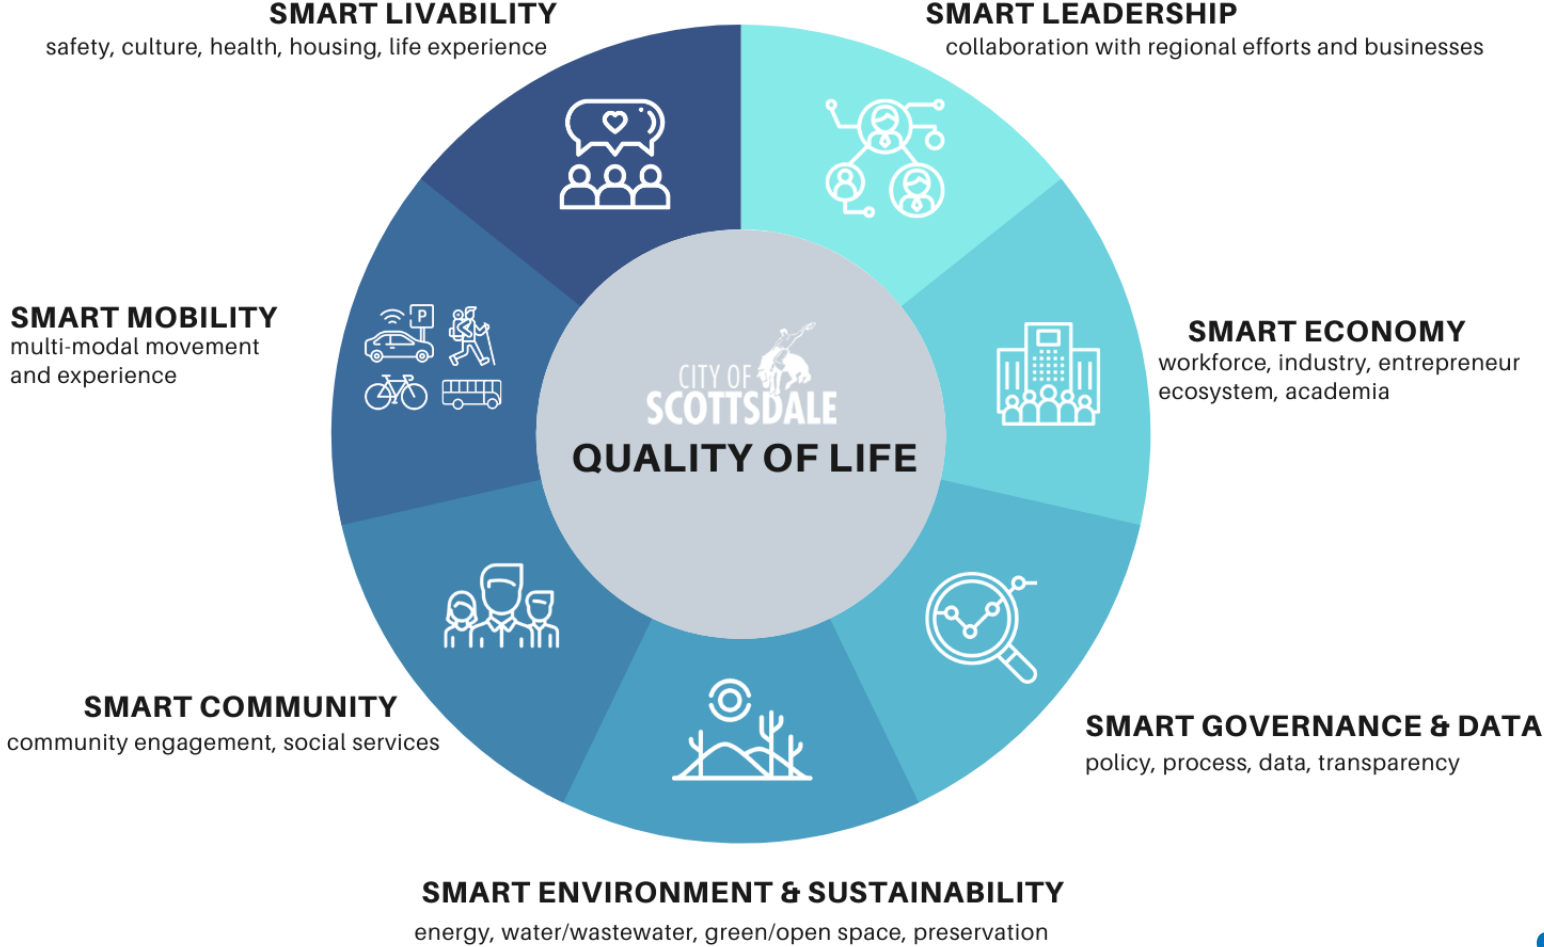

- Ben Green, The Smart-Enough City

The key is to figure out which smart city solutions are most likely to result in a more efficient, responsive and sustainable city that delivers better outcomes for people in Scottsdale
